This is important information about your 2022 Neighborhood Medicaid Member Handbook

Neighborhood Health Plan of Rhode Island is required by law to report anonymous medical data about its members' health care use and costs to the Rhode Island All Payer Claims Database (RI-APCD). Personal information, such as your name, social security number, address, date of birth and Neighborhood Medicaid member ID number is never reported.

In your Neighborhood Medicaid Member Handbook, on page 27, we provide you with information on how to request that your data is not reported to RI-APCD if you do not want it shared. This is also referred to as requesting to "opt-out."

What you need to know:

- All activities with the RI-APCD are suspended through November 2022.
- The opt-out request process described will be unavailable now through November 2022.
- Neighborhood will not be submitting data to the RI-APCD now through November 2022.

For more information and updates on when members will be able to opt-out, please go to www.riapcd-optout.com.
